

Imagine God calling you to a foreign mission field. What would that mission field look like? What would that people group and geographic location look like? Mountain, desert, beach, Valley? Would they speak your language or a language you were familiar with? What would be the dominant religion and the political landscape look like?

Many people would choose the familiar; logically, that seems safe and reasonable. However, being safe and reasonable can be the trap that keeps you from venturing out to the mission field God has prepared for you Eph 2:10.

A brief look at the apostles' lives, and you can see how they were scattered all over the known world, and in doing so, they further the gospel's reach. Taking a step of faith will take you out of your comfort zone, and that is where the excitement begins. I do not know what mission field God has prepared for you, but I do know He finds you useful and has empowered you to share his message of good news.

Now, I don't know if God is calling you to a specific place like an African or Asian nation, He might be calling you to reach others in your neighborhood or work environment. But whatever the calling, I know he is telling you to be an ambassador for Christ 2 Cor 5:20, to be a light that represents His kingdom 1 Thes 5:5. If you would like someone to explore the mission field that God has placed on your heart, I would be happy to talk with you. Call the number at the bottom of this page; I will pick up the phone.
