Let's Pray

"May Your Heart Be Broken With The Things That Break The Heart of God." When I first ran across this statement, it disturbed me, because it was something I never consider possible. Since that time, I have spent many years learning about the things God is passionate about, and I have applied that to my prayer life.

What I love about prayer is that it keeps me in tune with God; my communion with God is rewarding because it produces much fruit. I know that He hears me; I know that he is nearby, and I know that He is passionate about the things I pray for because it's revealed in the scriptures. I get excited about praying for the will of God to be done, one of the reasons is because I know when I am praying in such a way my heart is in tune with the Spirit of God. When I pray to be effective in sharing the Gospel, I do so with confidence because I know that God cares about the message and the people receiving that message more than I could fathom. When I pray for someone's deliverance, I do so with confidence because I know that Jesus came to set the oppressed free. When I pray for my friends and family, I know that God cares for them more than I ever could because He is the author of love, and His mercies are new every morning. I have found great satisfaction in praying for God's will to be fulfilled, as you go to God in prayer please remember us as we reach out to the neglected people groups in southeast India.
